Privacy Policy

1. Introduction

Welcome to EarthWise, an educational website dedicated to earthquake awareness, safety, and preparedness. We respect our users' privacy and aim to provide a safe environment for learning, tracking progress, and participating in community activities.

2. Information We Collect

EarthWise may collect information that users provide or generate while using the website, including usernames, display names, email addresses, quiz scores, emergency preparedness checklist progress, and community posts. This information helps us provide personalised features and improve the user experience.

3. How We Use Information

The information collected is used to manage user profiles, save quiz results, track preparedness progress, maintain activity records, and support participation in the Community Hub. We do not use personal information for advertising purposes.

4. Data Storage

EarthWise currently uses browser local storage to save user progress, profile information, and community activities. This information is stored on the user's device rather than in a central database. Clearing browser data may permanently remove saved progress.

5. Information Sharing

EarthWise is designed to support community participation through posts and educational discussions. In the current browser-based version, community posts are stored locally and are not automatically shared with other users. Users should avoid including sensitive personal information in their posts.

6. Cookies and Local Storage

EarthWise uses browser local storage to remember quiz scores, checklist completion, profile details, and other preferences. Local storage allows users to continue their activities without losing progress when they revisit the website using the same browser.

7. Data Security

We aim to protect user information through responsible data handling and by limiting unnecessary data collection. However, no digital system is completely secure. Users should avoid sharing passwords or sensitive information and take precautions when accessing EarthWise on shared devices.

8. User Rights

Users may update their profile information through the website's available settings. They may also request assistance with accessing, correcting, or deleting their information by contacting the EarthWise development team. Browser-stored information may be removed by clearing the website's local storage.

9. Children's Privacy

EarthWise provides educational resources that may be useful to students and younger audiences. Younger users should seek guidance from a parent, guardian, or teacher before sharing personal information. We encourage responsible participation and discourage the publication of sensitive personal details.

10. Contact Information

For questions, concerns, or requests regarding this Privacy Policy, users may contact the EarthWise development team through the website's official Contact Us section.
